We have enjoyed finally having a phone in our home, when it rings there is always someone on the other end with whom we wish to speak. My privacy is just that MINE, and WI has outdone itself in preserving highly irritating and annoying disturbances in our life. If I cancelled a service, there was a reason and I do not want to hear from that company ever again...do they think the public is so stupid we can't sort out services we need on our own? I would never accept a service via telephone and only an idiot would. Wisconsin keep your stand, the job performed so far against telemarketers has changed the attitude of the state. Also, only an idiot would be employed as a telemarketer!!!